

NEWS-FEB. 25, 2009

i2a Technologies names Pacific Gate Technologies to sales force

SAN JOSE—Pacific Gate Technologies, a manufacturer’s rep for semiconductor equipment and services, has been named a sales rep for i2a Technologies (formerly IPAC), Fremont, Calif., one of the largest and oldest domestic semiconductor assembly and packaging services.

i2a, which began in 1993, provides an extensive roster of services, including package design, IC assembly and advanced packaging technologies, featuring conventional-, chip-scale- and wafer-level packaging.

Danny R. Fields, Pac Gate president, notes that his newest client is a perfect match. Fields was the sales and marketing director for i2a for nearly 10 years and knows the company and its processes thoroughly.

Batinovich

Fields

Victor J. Batinovich, i2a president and CEO, agreed: “Making Danny’s firm an outside sales and marketing arm is a win-win situation for both companies and for our customers.

“As an extension of our inhouse sales and support capabilities, Danny is able to provide answers and assistance to customers on the level of our factory engineering staff.”

[ipac.com]