Carsem restructures U.S. sales

An operator at Carsem's Ipoh plant monitors the test floor.

IPOH, Malaysia—Carsem, a major provider of turnkey packaging and test, announced that industry veteran Greg Johnson, vice president of North American sales, has left the company to pursue business interests outside the semiconductor industry.

His sales duties will be assumed by Rick Flowers, vice president of worldwide sales and marketing. Carsem's three regional sales directors will report to Flowers, who is based in Malaysia. Johnson's position will not be replaced in the immediate future, Flowers said.
